

A learned judge in Chicago kindly explained to women in court that now voting and sharing men's privileges, they must share men's responsibilities. He ordered them to take off their hats. Two refused and were fined $5 each.

One of the women should have said to the judge:

"Learned sir, nature, older and wiser even than you, does not agree with your ruling. Some woman, your mother, carried you around for nine months before you were born. Men don't do that. That nine months' job is more than enough to offset the privilege of wearing a hat in your court. If you had tried the experiment of creating and carrying another human being you would know more about 'equality of privilege' than you know now."

The learned judge should hear Baklanoff sing at the Chicago opera. Somebody said Baklanoff was not moral and therefore ought not to sing. His striking reply was to the effect that barnyard roosters are not moral yet are allowed to crow. To this the singer added:

"How many American men are virtuous? Not 1 per cent." Baklanoff is unjust to a certain considerable percentage of American men. For many, when the day is over, are too tired, as well as too conscientious, to be anything but virtuous. Yet every judge knows that law and custom demand of women and obtain from women a standard of morality of which men are absolutely incapable. Proud man, so much given to hanging up his hat in queer places, might allow woman to do as she pleases about HER hat, and still leave the balance of privilege on man's side of the fence.

Ralph Elsmann, thirty-six years old, who recently bought an important lighting monopoly, gives a short recipe for "success in life."

"Borrow $1,000,000, use it wisely, and you are a success."

He adds other things, such as "keep going fast, so that you can jump the gaps," and "don't get after money, go after ideas." He even adds moralizing, which doesn't count. What does count is CREDIT, or, as Mr. Joe Day puts it, "O. P. M." alias other people's money.

Many profiteers of the world can testify that "O. P. M." is a success. They got your money, with which you bought Liberty bonds. Europe can testify that prosperity and success, without credit, are impossible, and so can the United States. The trouble with Europe is that her bad money won't buy here, and we do not help her with generous credits, as we should. The trouble with America is that her customers in Europe are bankrupt for lack of credit, and bankrupt customers don't pay.

Frank Munsey has bought the Baltimore American and the Baltimore Star from General Agnus, who, it is to be hoped, will begin now to enjoy life as a young man should at eighty-one, after he has spent sixty years in useful, patriotic work.

It must comfort General Agnus to know that, in turning his papers over to Frank Munsey, they go into the hands of an energetic youngster who combines the qualities of a Western "boom" town and an ancient Spartan father. He can make a paper boom if he finds it worth while, or he can knock it on the head and kill it very dead and write its epitaph himself most beautifully, if that seems the wise thing to do.

The Dean of St. Paul's in London, named "Inge," and called the "gloomy dean," says it is all right to cheat the government by smuggling liquor, if the government "exceeds its rights by prohibiting some harmless act."

Another English divine, Canon E. W. Barnes, of Westminster Abbey itself, says it is unscientific, "not necessary to Christian theology," to believe in the fall of man. He has evidently been reading about the Piltdown skull, the Neanderthal Cro-Magnon, Grimaldi types, also about pith-canopied erectus, homo sapiens, and other ancestors, and he thinks that, far from falling, we have risen steadily. He skips the whole Garden of Eden. This shows that if you really mean to believe a thing and teach it, it is dangerous to read too much on the outside.

With one reverend Englishman telling you to smuggle, if it seems to you wise, and another telling you that you have risen ever since the Mesozoic age, or, in fact, since the Azoic, you are rather confused on morality.

HUSBAND VALUES WIFE WHO SUPPORTED FAMILY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—G. L. Wilkinson loved his wife—he loved her so much that he valued her at $100,000.

This is the amount that the husband is asking of the United States courts of San Francisco because his wife was killed by a car at a crossing. Wilkinson asserts in his suit that his wife was the chief support of his family and that he has suffered a financial loss of $100,000 because of her death.

DUBLIN BOMB PLOT NIPPED

British Raid House Opposite Castle Where Work on Tunnel Had Begun.

FUSES AND POWDER FOUND

Officials Believe Scheme Was to Set Off Mine Under Historic Structure.

By ROBERT J. PREW.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—An attempt to blow up Dublin Castle after burrowing beneath the structure has just been nipped in the bud, according to information made public today by the British military in Ireland.

It is declared the military authorities received information of the plot and quickly raided a house just opposite the castle.

FUSE AND POWDER FOUND

Work already had been started to bore a tunnel, it is claimed, and in a room in the house fuses and powder were found.

Two Americans who arrived in London today after three weeks of the closest contact with the British military authorities in Dublin, were asked to explain Dublin Castle's interpretation of Premier Lloyd George's claim in the House of Commons a few days ago that "We have murder in Ireland by the throat."

"That means that Sir Neville Macready, head of the British military forces in Ireland, has informed the government that the military has now reached the highest pitch of efficiency in dealing with Irish disorders."

"For a long time the superiority of the leaders of the Irish Republican army was demonstrated, and this delayed the English operations, but now the English have built up a marvelous secret service."

"They called in the finest men from as far away as the Canadian Northwest, the frontiers of India, the Baltic, Russia, and other parts of the world and had them concentrate on outguessing the leaders of the Sinn Fein."

"Practically every active Sinn Fein body is now home-combed with spies, and scarcely a step can be planned without the information reaching the authorities."

"We have glimpsed some of the military's secret service records in which the authorities claim to have posted practically every member of the so-called murder gang. It is only a matter of time when they will round up the 'sinn fein' gang."

"The military is most insistent that they are concerned only with stamping out crime. They claim their success is beyond doubt, but admit that Ireland's demand for freedom remains unweakened."

TROOPS RAID DUBLIN; DOZEN ARRESTS MADE

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—Numerous raids were made here yesterday by British troops and Black and Tan policemen. A dozen arrests were made.

Sing Sing Puts Guard on Prunes to Stop Men Making "Cell Brew"

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Ray Hill Sergeant of the Sing Sing Prison guard, today had under his care the lowly prune.

Prisoners, who receive a liberal dish of prunes twice weekly, had corralled a quantity of the fruit and were making something better than bayrum as a prohibition drink. The brew was discovered before it had been distilled.

No Warden Lawes issued a general order regarding prunes.

Now Sergeant Hill, as prune custodian, is the busiest man in Sing Sing.

PHELAN FLAYS JAPAN TREATY

Senator in Arms Against Proposed Pact to Give Aliens Civil Rights.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Commenting upon press dispatches dealing with the proposed treaty between Japan and the United States, Senator James D. Phelan today issued the following statement:

Press dispatches indicate that the treaty between Japan and the United States, now being negotiated, will give Japan the right to regulate immigration into this country of her nationals, under the guise of self-imposed exclusion, which is utterly vain and impracticable, and in consideration thereof, the Japanese now in California are to be given civil rights.

What "civil rights" embrace is not specified, but ordinarily it would mean all rights enjoyed by citizens.

Hence the plan seems to be to give citizenship to the Japanese now in California, numbering 100,000, and reproducing themselves at a birth rate per thousand more than three times that of the whites, and would be eight or ten times in case, as they are trying to do, to secure the introduction of Japanese women by crossing the ocean in large numbers and going through the form of marriage, since the exposure of the "picture bride" fraud.

The Belgian hares were introduced into Australia until, by their rapid increase, they became a destructive nuisance. There was not enough food to maintain them. They crowded out all other form of animal life.

Now if a treaty were negotiated between Belgium and Australia to bar the introduction of any more rabbits, but to grant the right of increase of those already there, it would be no restriction of the rabbit traffic at all.

TYPHUS BREAKS OUT IN WRANGEL'S WAKE

Crimean Refugees Pour Into Constantinople Bringing Deadly Epidemic.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21.—Typhus and smallpox epidemics have broken out among the thousands of refugees who have arrived here from Crimea. The death list threatens to go to appalling proportions.

WAR SCOURGE THREATENS U.S.

Hospitals Needed to Stop Wave of Insanity and White Plague.

Is Uncle Sam making good on the promises to the men and women who served him in the war and survived? Has he kept the faith with the dependent loved ones of those who sleep the eternal sleep under foreign sod?

Has the gratitude of the American people been translated into practical help for those who returned broken in pocket, body or mind? A thorough survey of the three Federal agencies dealing with disabled soldiers has just been made for the Hearst Sunday papers. It will be described in six articles, divided into three installments, beginning today.

This work has been done by Charles O. Power, of the Boston staff. During the war he was an official vocational adviser of disabled soldiers for the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

Progress is noted and praised. Suggestions are made for further improvement. What criticism there is is directed at those who have shown lack of grasp or indifference.

A series of articles by Mr. Power in the Hearst papers a little more than a year ago stirred the conscience of the country. They caused Congress to realize how sick and wounded service men had been neglected—because three Government agencies had failed to function in a big way.

These agencies have improved greatly. They have adopted many suggestions made in these columns. But there is still much to be done.

Mr. Power's survey is made at the suggestion of the men for whom help is needed at the incoming session of Congress. It tells what has been done, what has not been done, and what should be done.

These young men know the United States is facing a scourge of insanity and tuberculosis unless money is appropriated for more and better hospital service.

Much of the Government's care of its disabled heroes is by proxy. There is official friction through misunderstandings and unconscious jealousy.

Co-ordination of the three Government services under a single directing head is absolutely essential.

HARDING HALF WAY ON ROAD TO CANAL

Cuban Tip Sighted and Passed As Party Gathers for Morning Greetings.

WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING'S PARTY ABOARD THE S. S. PARISMA, EN ROUTE TO PANAMA.

MA. Nov. 21.—Senator Harding's subcommittee and rest cure party today had passed the half-way mark in their voyage south to the Canal Zone.

The Cuban tip had been sighted and left behind when the party gathered today for the morning greetings on deck.

The President-elect and Mrs. Harding, as well as the members of their excursion party, today were thoroughly rested. The Senator, apparently, was enjoying the opportunity to avoid parades and conferences for the first time since the beginning of the Presidential campaign.

The Cuban tip, marking approximately the half-way point, was passed yesterday afternoon. The Senator had arisen at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Harding, who had breakfasted in bed, joined the President-elect on deck. Neither were seasick and both enjoyed the pleasant sensation of gliding swiftly through the smooth seas.

Last night the Senator attended the orchestra concert. By his special request the musicians played "Barcarolle" and "La Paloma."

The President-elect, having tired of the game of shuffleboard, which has been the chief amusement of newspaper men with the party, brought forth a favorite magazine and enjoyed reading it on deck.

CRIME

SUCCESS IN ONE CASE

Medium, Told of Theft, Gives Name of Maid Who Stole Jewel.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—That crime can be abolished by making it impossible for the criminal to go undetected, through the medium of communion with the dead, is the remarkable claim put forth in Paris by Gustave Geley, director of the International Metaphysical Institute and one of the world's best known authorities on spiritualism.

Madame Robert, a wealthy Parisienne, called on Dr. Geley one day last week and said that she had been robbed of a diamond brooch worth $8,000. Dr. Geley suggested that they consult a medium.

The medium was told of the circumstances and forthwith went into a trance, wherein she not only gave the name of the thief—a chambermaid—but described the exact location of the loot. The information was given to the police, the chambermaid confessed, and every detail of the medium's statement was proved correct.

As a result of the occurrence Dr. Geley believes that any crime can be similarly solved, provided a medium of proper powers is obtainable, and has suggested that the French police establish a special metaphysics department staffed with mediums of every nationality and degree of power.

This, he says, the detection of crime will become so simple that criminals will become a class extinct.

The discovery has caused enormous interest in police and metaphysical circles throughout the world.

HARDING MAY CALL ON OBREGON BY INVITATION

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—It is reported here that President-elect Harding has accepted an invitation to meet President Obregon this week at Vera Cruz.

POPE WOULD SHUT DOWN MONTE CARLO

Pontiff Will Ask Prince of Monaco to Close Gambling Resort.

ROME, Nov. 21.—Pope Benedict XV is preparing to ask the Prince of Monaco to close up Monte Carlo, the greatest gambling resort the world has ever known.

That the pontiff plans this step in a great crusade against immorality throughout the whole world became known today.

Diplomatic relations have been renewed between the Vatican and the little principality of Monaco after an interruption of eight years, and M. De Fontaine has arrived here with his credentials to represent the Prince of Monaco at the Holy See.

Vatican circles regard the resumption of diplomatic relations with the principality of Monaco as a development of great importance, despite the fact that the principality consists of only eight separate miles of territory, containing the Casino, some luxurious hotels, a park and the prince's palace.

Pope Benedict XV has long been anxious to do away with gambling at Monte Carlo, but he could not approach the Prince of Monaco directly so long as relations between the Vatican and the principality were broken. The pontiff holds that the gambling at Monte Carlo is a source of immorality to both men and women and an appalling waste of money and human life.

There is little likelihood, however, that the pontiff's request will meet with success, no matter how urgent it may be made.

VILLA STILL WORKING ON HIS BIG RANCH

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—While it is true that Villa is interested in colonizing Lower California and other wild schemes, he has not left Durango, where he is still working his 200,000-acre ranch.

Reports are that he is already short of money and cannot mortgage the ranch, as the Mexican government still keeps title to the property, although it was turned over to Villa when he quit the "bandit business."

COLLECTION FOR FUNERAL

Because Mrs. Shipley did not have sufficient funds to pay for the funeral of the children, residents of Rockville, Md., and Germantown, Md., yesterday contributed more than $200 to pay for the burial of the children. The money was collected by Miss Minnie Yearley, of Rockville. More than $100 of the money was collected in Rockville.

State Attorney Dawson, Sheriff Nicholson, and Deputy Sheriff Ginnell this afternoon went to Germantown to continue the search for clues. Yesterday they searched the home of Thompson and found a number of percussion caps, but it is not believed that they were any of the caps which disappeared with the fifty pounds of dynamite on Wednesday night.

"The fact that we found the percussion caps," said State's Attorney Dawson, "indicates that Thompson is familiar with the use of dynamite."

The authorities believe less than ten pounds of dynamite was used in the explosion at the Bolton home. The remainder of the explosive is believed to be somewhere between the Thompson and Bolton homes.

Further efforts of the police to obtain a confession from Thompson that he blasted the Bolton home have failed. Thompson maintains his innocence of any connection with the dynamiting, although admitting he has made a number of conflicting statements as to his whereabouts on Wednesday night and early Thursday morning.

He admits being at the warehouse of Waters and Thrift, at Germantown, at 3 o'clock Thursday morning, but denies he stole the fifty pounds of dynamite, declaring he went there to steal some canned goods.

NO CANNED GOODS THERE.

The police point to the fact that Thompson, who formerly had worked for Waters & Thrift, was aware of the fact that no canned goods were kept in the warehouse.

Detective Bradley is expected to return to Rockville from Baltimore tomorrow to investigate the case further.

Thompson will be kept at the Rockville jail and not moved to Baltimore, while there is feeling against him. State's Attorney Dawson does not believe any effort will be made to take him from jail.
